A Home Chief Escapes from Jail in Bucyrus.

Special Dispatch to the Pittsburgh Commercial.

Bucyrus, Ohio, September 29, 1868.

Last night, the jailer, Mr. Wm. Wright, went into the prisoners up for the night, when Nolan, confined for horse stealing, escaped by hitting near the door and running out and getting over the fence. Wright followed him, but was soon left behind, and returning found the jail empty. Nolan has been arrested twice before, but got away. Fifty dollars reward has been offered by the sheriff for his arrest.

The Soldiers' Encampment at Philadelphia.

With their accustomed hospitality the citizens of Philadelphia have made ample arrangements for the accommodation and entertainment of all soldiers and sailors who may attend the National Convention, which meets in that city to-morrow and Friday. The Republican Association have placed their commodious rooms at the corner of Broad and Chestnut streets at the disposal of the soldiers' guests, and have made arrangements to provide for those who may be unable to secure quarters at the hotels. The citizens of each section of the city have formed themselves into a reception committee, and the Union Volunteer Refreshment Saloon, which did such noble service during the war, have volunteered their services, the latter have secured Jayne's Hall, where they will dispense refreshments. The Citizens' Committee on Reception will attend to the wants of the visitors. Everything necessary for the entertainment and convenience of their guests is being provided by the hospitable citizens of Philadelphia.

Fraudulent Officers.

General Sheridan spoke to a very large audience to-night, giving a detailed account of his personal observations during his late extended tour through the South. He spoke in substance as follows: Upon the right advance of the movement in the elementary branches of learning, and altogether affairs were in a more promising condition than he had expected.

The Public Debt.

It is confidently believed at the Treasury Department, from returns already received, that the internal revenue collections will show an increase in the public debt.

Washington, September 29, 1868.

THE GOVERNOR'S MURDER.

At a term of the Freedmen's Bureau, located at New Orleans September 26th, major. With a view to reduce the number where the remaining witnesses from a distance can be heard, and to facilitate the transaction of the business and secure the freedmen for attendance and labor, the Assistant Commissioner has ordered that hereafter the hearing of cases in the several districts of this command will be limited to seven days, and that the number of witnesses to come from other districts be limited to three in each case, and that the parties be required to procure the attendance of their witnesses. The Assistant Commissioner also directs that the Provost Courts be closed on the 1st of October, and that all cases pending before them be transferred to the Freedmen's Courts.

Destruction of Property by Fire.

Yesterday was the second day of the Hebrew Feast of Tabernacles, and the Synagogue on Elm street, in the Fifth ward, was crowded with worshippers. The building is a two story brick, with a basement and attic, for two-and-a-half years. It was built by Bethel's Venerable Society, and was used by the Hebrew congregation. The Rev. Edgar's memorial was connected with it. The building was valued at $15,000, and was insured for $10,000 in the Western Insurance Company, and $5,000 in the Allegheny Insurance Company. The fire originated in the basement, and had gained such headway before the alarm was given that the building was soon destroyed. The fire was discovered by Mr. Frank Bair, who was passing by on his way home from business. The flames were then issuing from the windows of the basement, and he at once gave the alarm. The fire companies were soon on the ground, but could do little to save the building. The engines were kept at work for some time, pouring streams of water into the ruins.

Probable Increase of Public Debt.

Washington, D. C., September 29, 1868.

Troops for Alabama.

The Alabama delegation had a very satisfactory interview with the President and Secretary of War this morning. Mr. Johnson assured them that their request for troops to keep peace in their state should be forwarded, and tomorrow they are to receive copies of similar papers from the War Department, directed to several Sheriffs, to those given to the Democratic delegation, directed to General Thomas. It is believed by the authorities here that such instructions cover the whole ground, and it is expected that all requirements will expressly express their provisions. The evening Democratic organ here is quite dissatisfied at the President's prompt action in the case.

Delmar's Figures Denounced.

Secretary Spinner has denounced Delmar's financial statements to-day, in the most unmeasured terms, to all who select his captious. He says they are dogging facts, and the doing of the kind he ever examined, and that armed with simplicity he a great deal of positive misinformation. Secretary McCulloch indignantly repudiated the whole thing. It is reported that the Treasury Department find this statement has been in course of preparation for over a month, although the actual figures cannot and others to complete to-day or to-morrow. Some time before any men whose names are known to the public could be found to request a publication by Delmar. He was refused all access to official figures at the Treasury office, and also at the office of the Register of the Treasury, so sure did all the Treasury Departments feel that the paper would disgrace them.

The Spanish Revolt.

Paris, September 28.—The queen of Spain still remains at San Sebastian. She is attended by Carlos Martinez, one of the members of the late Cabinet. General Prim sails from Cadiz at the head of the Government in Madrid, and Manuel Concha, in command of an army in the field, have both sent their congratulations to the queen. In their communications they indicate that Her Majesty that her refusal to return to Madrid unless accompanied by her Minister, Martinez, destroys all hope of checking the insurrection. Another general movement has been made in favor of the Carlists, and word for the Count of Chaste to form a new Ministry. The queen also commanded a Council of State to meet at San Sebastian.

Barcelona, September 28.—The following are the very latest reports which have been received from Spain: The city of Carthagena, the town bombarded by the rebel fleet, General Prim has gone to Valencia. The Marquis of Novaliches, commander of the Royal troops in the field, is advancing before the advance of Marshal Serrano.

Paris, September 28, Evening.—The Patrie says: The situation in Spain is grave. The rebels are gaining strength every day, while the affairs of the government are withdrawn the moment are evidently becoming weaker. The chief ship of the Spanish navy has now joined the rebels, and all reports indicate that public opinion throughout the kingdom favors revolution. The position of the army which still remains faithful to the queen is becoming untenable. Cadiz has been declared in a state of siege. Martinez Campos, the Royal army, at last accounts, was completely surrounded by the insurgent troops, and is probably captured by this time. The insurgents are marching upon Madrid. The Marquis de Novaliches has resigned his command, and the right of attack to the insurgents under General Serrano. The rebels have rebuilt Santander. Cadiz has been declared in a state of siege. There is no longer any doubt that the Democrats are colonizing excessively from Maryland, New York, and even Kentucky. To colonize a number of carpet baggers were pressed in a single ward in this city. No doubt the game is being extensively carried on. Our friends should be on the alert. Examine the lists and prepare to arrest the first carpet bagger who attempts to vote.

The Spanish insurrection has assumed such proportions as to render it highly probable that it will end in complete revolution of the Government. The army and navy, with certain exceptions, appear to be thoroughly disaffected, and the issue of the defection of the clergy to be taken in forming a new government. Although this result is not a promising fact, in this case it will certainly insure an improvement for Spain—for a worse government than that which has probably been enthroned forever, could not well be.

The Democrats met in City Convention, yesterday, and resolved in "recognition" to nominate a city ticket, as the Labor Reform candidates were worthy the support of all Democrats. This was merely an endorsement of the action of the Democratic threesin giving in nomination, under the Labor Reform guise, Messrs. Buchanan, Wagner and McShane. No one doubted that they would declare it inexpedient to nominate no tickets. The Convention was of the utmost character, and utterly devoid of interest, simply from the fact that Republicans, as well as Democrats, knew perfectly well, weeks ago, what the result would be.

The Worst says Isaac Pomeroy, the editor of the Rhode Islander, has been for forty years a champion of Democratic principles. No exception is made for the period that Pomeroy was fiercely striving to destroy the Government, from which we infer that the World regards the rebellion only as a manifestation of "Democratic principles." No doubt it is correct. The proof of it is to be found in the fact that the paroled rebel army almost to a man are supporting Seymour and Blair, having dictated the platform on which they are running. The World has admitted just what the people in a body were making up their minds to.

The report that the colored people at Camilla, Georgia, were armed needs confirmation. There is good reason for believing that they were not. Had they been, somebody on the other side would have been hurt, but we have no account that anybody was. The fact is, the colored people in Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi can meet together only at the risk of their lives. We are convinced of this misapprehension on their part, both public and private. The truth is, in the above States the rebels have determined that the colored voters shall not come near the polls, except to vote for Seymour and Blair. Of course loyal white men are not safe; and we have reason to expect that Grant stands no chance of carrying either of the above States. Nor, since the result cannot be changed, do we particularly care, except for the injustice done the loyal people of those States. We are confident, however, that when Grant is President there will be no half way work in dealing with this second rebellion.

THE OLD GUARD.

General Black is evidently determined to sustain the position he voluntarily assumed in his famous Bloomington letter. His utterances have the true Frontmore ring in them. Alluding to the action of Congress, in his speech on Monday night, he made use of the following expression: "They say that the Rump Congress have set up carpet-bag governments in the South." He termed Congress "this immoderate Congress," and ridiculed the idea that "their judgment shall not be brought into question anywhere, or that the people shall not have an authority to enforce them." This language is exactly the kind we had a right to expect from the author of the Bloomington letter, and the man who has been selected by the ex-rebels to champion their cause. He who has the courage to pronounce Congress a "Rump Congress," and to hint at subversion of the laws, in one and the same breath, would prove a willing instrument in furthering the wishes of Southern traitors, in any manner the Ku-Klux Klan might determine on.

BLAIR'S FALSE HISTORICAL COMPARISON.

In his speech delivered in this city Monday night, General Francis Blair compared the policy pursued by the government towards the Southern States, to the policy England has pursued towards Ireland. Anything more unfair or unreasonable as an argument than this comparison has not been advanced during the campaign.

The English Government sold large portions of the lands belonging to the original owners of Ireland, to the highest bidders among the nobility and bestowed the remainder to the aristocracy of the crown. The people were destitute, their language and their religion were unlike. The English Government proceeded deliberately to uproot the religion of the Irish people, and compelled them to support a church whose teachings they believed to be erroneous. The English Government, in its attempt to denationalize the Irish people, not satisfied with imposing a new upon their religion, took from them their language, and compelled them to adopt English text-books, deeming that the best way to accomplish their object. To this end an Irishman who makes his home in England, must also make up his mind to endure the jibes and scorn which an arrogant and proud nation bestows upon a weak nation.

In what respect then does the policy of our Government towards the Southern States resemble that which characterizes the English government in its treatment of Ireland? The rebellious States have been subdued. Has the Government deprived their citizens of their lands? Have citizens seek their fortunes there too. Are they insulted, hazed from successful pursuits or the highest social positions? The press of the Southern people were engaged in the rebellion. According to the law of nations, the leading spirits deserved death. Have they been punished? Does General Francis Blair term the disfranchisement of those men gross violation of the Constitution, and a usurpation of the Constitution, and a usurpation of the Constitution, and a usurp

The local discount market did not develop any change worthy of special mention. We are unable to discover any effect which the period of the banks making out their quarterly statements generally produces in tightening the money market, although the usually stagging character for a time almost entirely. Whatever of preparation there is necessary to make will be made during the present week, but we do not apprehend any disturbance to the easy condition of the money market on that account.

Local stocks and securities are exceedingly quiet, without any one of them appearing to attract the attention of either local or outside operators to any little degree in the way of activity on the market. They appear entirely satisfied with them as an investment.

In New York the rates of money, at call, to the leading ranged steadily throughout the week, and the usual supply of paper continued free at from 5 to 6 per cent. On the same street prime collaterals, while at times the rates were no higher now, or call, and don't go over, on the best suggestions, good merchantile paper is as high as other loans at 7 per cent., and no doubt of one or more loans upon stock commercial indorsers, at the same rate.
